About the Artist

Laure-Anne Le Caignec

Laure-Anne Le Caignec is a French artist from Lorient, a small city of the beautiful Brittany. Passionate with colors since childhood she likes to express herself with soft pastel and painting. She attended the Beaux-Arts School of Lorient during a few years, as a hobby, and experimented different techniques: sculpture, gravure, serigraphy, Art's History... After High School, Art was an evidence for her and she decided to join a private art school in Nantes. During two years she studied rough technics, typology, anatomy, graphism and above all illustration with acrylic. Passionate with travels and distant horizons, she has painted a series of portraits of endangered people: sad faces, wrinkled skin, colored turbans, and eyes full of hope, that she presented in a few successful exhibits. In 2007 she decided to improve her art in the decorative painting and the "trompe-l'oeil" at the IPEDEC School of Paris, where she learned technics of false wood, marble, stone, sky and panoramic scenic. Decorative painting and hyperrealism remain her forte. She now lives in Orlando, the wizard area made her discover black paint and is leading her for sure towards new creations!
